ARGUMENT. THE PITTSBURG, CINCINNATI & St. LOUIS RAILWAY, popularly known as the "PAN-HANDLE ROUTE," in connection with the Penn-sylvania Railboad, is materially shorter than my of the transportation ling competing for brough business between the West and the through business between the West and the commercial cities and popular resorts of the East. This edvantage in distance, together with the fact that all the times embraged in the Pennsylvania system, extending from St. Louis, Louis Vincennes, Uncinnati, Indianapolis, Illinois State Line, and Chicago in the West, to Pittsburg, Carrisburg, Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphin, and New York in the East, are virtually under one management, enables the company to offer facilities and present advantages to the traveling public never before equaled. The directness of its lines to the East, the speed and regularity of its numerous Express trains, the comfort found in its celebrated day and sleeping coaches, the recognized superiority of its roadbed and equipment, the beauty of its scenery, and the sightsive facilities enjoyed at the Main Entrance of the Exhibition Grounds, Philadelphia, where passengers are landed at Philadelphia, where passengers are landed at a Grand Centennial Depot, in close proximity to large botels and boarding houses, entitle the Pan Hamile and Pennsylvania Line to a large proportion of Centennial travel.
